

Voted Best GPS by leading golf magazine

Southland Golf is a leading golf magazine covering one of the most golf-centric areas in the world with over 500 golf clubs including prestigious clubs like Big Horn, Rivieria, La Costa, PGA West, Torrey Pines and Trump National.

In its September 2006 issue, Southland Golf voted Tustin Ranch's Inforemer GPS system the best in Southern California.

Tustin Ranch represents the Inforemer's first foray into California and was installed only in May 2006. The two other cart-based GPS manufacturers together claim 26 courses in California as customers.

New kid on the block, barely three months old, one against twenty-six hardly seems fair. Yet the Inforemer came out tops.

The reason is as clear as our screens: the largest, brightest screen with best graphics. The details say a lot about us.

Oh, and don't forget the WiFi. It makes the Inforemer communicate 200 times faster with a lot more features like video. Speed is everything. The others don't and can never have WiFi: we've stymied them with our patents. Being the leader in GPS technology has its advantages.

Best golf cart GPS system: Tustin Ranch Golf Club.

The carts at Tustin Ranch feature the most detailed and graphic GPS system we've ever seen. Based on a satellite system with state-of-the-art clarity and graphics, every cart has its own URL address so you can send and receive messages from the golf shop (in case you've lost a club, for instance). There are also yardages from every tee which can be set so you can measure your drives and landmarks showing every tree and bunker. There's also scoring pages, a live leaderboard for tournament scoring and a CBS Sports Ticker for up-to-the-minute scores from around the professional sports world.
